There is not a shoe in this elegant spring stock that was not made to our special order-not a shoe is here the like of which you will find elsewhere. All sizes and widths, too and widths mean something here. The shoe stores most all claim to carry seven widths, from AAA to EE, but measure 'em-perhaps three widths; the rest is in the marking

Making shoes properly costs money-producing different patterns for each size so carefully as to keep the perfect contours of the styles and widen the shoe by degrees as little as a sixteenth of an inch.

There are but a few manufacturers who keep up to this standard of perfection, and we control their output for this city.

That's why this spring stock is so exclusive—that's why our footwear is so fine. Every shoe "novelty" that you ever saw or heard of is here—that is, if it is stylish in the fashionable centers.

At $2.48, an elegant black oxford, with or without a patent tip. A tan one at same price, with sharp needle toe. At $2.98, oxfords of all the newest shades of leather and all patent leather. Also patent leather, with kid top. All shapes and sizes. At $3.48, a fine line of ladies' and men's high shoes, in all newest shades of leather and all the newest shapes. You ladies skip the largest variety of cycling footwear and leggins in town when you skip ours. We have styles you won't find south of New York city.

grabbed her, and, amid her screams to her brother for help, undertook to carry her to an adjoining room. She fought frantically to release herself from his grasp, but could colly succeed in preventing him from accomplishing his purpose. He, becoming frightened for fear of her brother hearing her outcries, agreed to release her if she would promise not to say anything about it. Only too glad to be released, she gave the required promise, and the negro went out of the house, and went about his duties on the farm. As soon as she could communicate with her brother she gave him the full particulars. Greatly incensed at the conduct of Upshur, his first impulse was to get his gun and shoot him. His sister, however, plead with him to let the law take its course and at once have him arrested. This he finally consented to do, and, without acquainting Upshur with his intention or letting him know he had knowledge of the affair, he quickly went after Constable A. R. Jacobs, who at once responded, and took Upshur into custody. Upshur was dumfounded at his arrest so quickly made, as he imagined his deed would not be made known. He was greatly excited, and wept and plead with the officer. Constable Jacobs locked him up, and Justico J. S. Riley was summoned, and a preliminary examination had, when the facts as above stated were substantiated by the testimony of the young lady and her brother. The accused was sent on to court and committed to jail at Fairfax Court House, and was at once taken there by Constable Jacobs. Miss Sprankle, at the examination, showed evidence of the rough treatment she had received at the hands of the negro, and prints of the fellow's fingers were plainly visible upon her throat and she was otherwise injured. Much excitement prevails, but there are no threats of lynching heard. Grand values at King's Palace for every one. Prices specially low this after Easter week. 25c. Flowers, oc.

The officer then realized for the first time the importance of quick action. He first imag-ined that some one was tampering with the railroad tracks, but without waiting to consider the matter he started in pursuit of the fugitive. The latter had not gone of the fugitive. The latter had not gone far before he reached a wire fence, and was stopped. Close behind him was the officer, and he was unable to stop before reaching the fence. Consequently he ran against the obstruction and piled over the man. When he fell he grabbed the man and held to him. The latter was anxious to get away, and would in all probability have disappeared before the meeting on the ground had it not been that the fence stopped him.

Soon afterward, however, the policeman learned that the drug store of Arthur B. Burrows had been burglarized. The shutters in rear of the store had been pried open and the store entered. Both money drawers in the store had been broken and the iron safe, the fragments of which were found on the railroad track, had been taken from the store.

This morning Murphy was arraigned in Judge Miller's court on a charge of burglary, and he entered a plea of not guilty.

auspices of the National Geographic Soclety, descriptive of a trip to Alaska, but he was too ill to appear, and Prof. Marcus Baker of the geological survey kindly took his place. The subject of the lecture was "From Sitka to the Sunset," and, as Prof. Baker explained to the large audience, he merely endeavored to describe in a very general way the trip from the extreme northwestern point of Washington state to the last of the Aleutian Islands, and, incidentally, the illustrations descriptive of the scenery en route. This he did in a very entertaining and instructive manner. Speaking of Sitka, he remarked that it is about as old as Washington, with a mean temperature like that of Boston. It was settled by the Russians, and named after the Archangel Gabriel, in order to secure his protection. But the desired protection falling to be secured it was later, named after the Archangel Michael, and still later it became known as Sitka. At one time most of the Aleutian Islands were inhabited, said Prof. Baker, but now very few of merely endeavored to describe in a very most of the Aleutian Islands were inhabited, said Prof. Baker, but now very few of them are inhabited. The glaciers of Alaska were graphically described, also its volcanoes, as well as the general character of the country, which, he explained, was for the most part extremely forbidding and cheerless.

The final lecture in the course will be delivered next Monday afternoon by Prof.
